FORTY-FOURTH YEAR No. 13.

CEDARVILLE, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1931

PRICE, $1.50 A YEAR

NEWS LETTER FROM STATE DEPARTMENTS

COLUMBUS, O.—Many people are fully aware that the Eighty-eighth General Assembly of Ohio handed to the people of the state, a new election code, to become operative January 1, 1930. This code of laws was accepted as very much superior to the election laws which it superseded. Probably the more important features of the new law included provisions for a system of permanent registration, elimination of the extra primary election in Presidential years, and the paving of the way for the adoption of the voting machines. Notwithstanding the care exercised in their preparation the test of these laws would naturally be found in their practical operation, and the experience of the past year brought to light a few inconsistencies which needed correction.

For this reason and acting under authority of a House joint resolution, a sub-committee of six members was named to consider various provisions of the election laws. It was also arranged that all bills in the hands of the elections committees of both houses be immediately referred to the sub-committee for its consideration. The members of the committee, anxious to have the cooperation of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, as he is the chief election officer of the state, requested that he meet with them and lend his assistance in the work. Meetings have been arranged for every night this week. Members of the committee are Senators C. J. Anderson of Richland county, Paul Y. Yoder of Montgomery, John A. Lloyd of Scioto and Representatives Robert A. Pollock of Stark, Harry N. Hansen of Lucas, and Maurice J. Allen of Hamilton county.

The convention season is still on and as a result the Capital City continues to attract thousands of visitors from over the state. They are never at a loss for entertainment or sight-seeing attractions for within the confines of the corporation are approximately 800 clubs and associations, 254 public buildings and halls, 52 hospitals and sanitariums, and many more.

Among the most beautiful of these is the new and beautiful Riverside Drive with scores of other interesting places which may be visited. One hundred and sixty passenger trains leave the city daily, which with motor buses and interurban cars, makes the city easy accessible to all visitors.

The annual meeting of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society in conjunction with the Ohio History Conference, will be held April 30th, with forenoon, afternoon and evening sessions. The Ohio State Museum, located on the campus of Ohio State University at the North High street and Fifteenth avenue, is open to visitors between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m., and on Sundays from 1 to 5 p. m.

The movie shows of Warden Preston E. Thomas at the Ohio Penitentiary continue to draw immense throngs and the inmates are more than grateful for the diversion and pleasure afforded them by the humanitarian superintendent of the big institution. Many of the prisoners had never seen a movie and hundreds of them never heard a "talkie." The revival held at the chapel recently, culminated in 273 conversions, all of whom were received into the Community church. At baptismal services 33 received the rite by immersion and 41 by sprinkling. Warden Thomas now has 4,678 men in his charge and the list continues to grow, due to the fact principally that long term sentences are imposed by trial judges, mostly from ten to twenty-five years, and no inmate may be paroled until the minimum sentence has been served.

Hogs Stolen From Penny Freight Car

A car of fat hogs that had been loaded by the local co-op branch was entered last Wednesday by breaking the seal. A truck had been used to load hogs but it is believed only two were taken, the thieves probably being frightened away. As the door was left open, twenty-seven were out but twenty-five were found in the neighborhood. The shipment was bound for Baltimore. L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, investigated but there has been no clue up to this time.

FORECLOSURE ASKED

The Peoples Building and Savings Co. is plaintiff in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court against William Henry Adling, seeking foreclosure of mortgaged property in the event of non-payment of $387.48, claimed to be due from the defendant. C. W. Whitmer is the plaintiff's attorney.

Girl's Team Wins Second
Playing in the last tournament to be held in this state for girls, the Red and White sextet won the right to compete in the finals after defeating Yellow Springs and Jamestown teams. Friday afternoon, the Bryan lassies were defeated 24-13, although the local team failed to get started in the first half.

In the semi-finals played Saturday afternoon, C. H. S. girls walked away from the Jamestown sextet during the last half to win 17-8. However, during the finals, Saturday evening, the local team was unable to cope with the scoring of Bellbrook's forwards and trailed behind to come in for second place in the county by a score of 22-15.

Quintet is Defeated in First Game
After obtaining a 22 to 11 lead at the half, the local team lost to the Jefferson Quintet in an overtime game. The Red and White aggregation encountered no difficulty during the first half, as they seemed able to score from nearly every angle. Nevertheless, the Jefferson boys gradually lessened our lead until with only a minute to play, Waddle fouled Hargrave, Jefferson's guard, who made good use of his two free throws to tie the score 20-20. In the overtime tie of three minutes, Jefferson succeeded in sinking two field goals, while the local lads failed to score.

Season's Summary
During the past season, the Red and White quintet has won nine games and lost nine. Their opponents have slightly out scored them by obtaining 427 points to the locals 417. Five of the squad including Harrison, Rife, Finney, Coulter, and Printz, graduate this spring. However, with plenty of good material in the reserve squad, next year's outlook is not all dull.

The girls have been successful in winning twelve games, losing four and tying one. They have outscored their opponents by making 357 points to 279 points made by the opposing teams.

The girl's team will suffer even more from graduation than the boy's team, since four of the first team have played their last game for C. H. S. These four are Barnhart, Beck, Corry and Pullin, who will be sadly missed next year.

Four of Local Squads Placed on All County Team
Among those honored by being placed on the Mythical all-county teams of this year are: Waddle, guard for the boy's second team, Strobridge and Corry for the girl's second team, Barnhart for the girl's first team.

Council Hears From Ladies' Committee

Council met in regular session Monday having before it the usual routine of business and hearing from a special committee, consisting of Mrs. W. W. Galloway and Mrs. J. S. West, representing local club organizations on town beautification.

Council also passed a resolution congratulating the Board of Public Affairs for the manner in which the municipal water and sewerage systems have been installed. His work has all been completed and paid for out of the bond issue.

It might also be stated the officials and citizens in general are well pleased with the interest the public has taken in use of the water. We are nearing a hundred taps for water over a period of about four months. Property owners for the season will take out permits for the coming summer. The more taps taken out and service lines placed the sooner council can make permanent improvements on streets.

Every Ohio Bridge Will Be Numbered

COLUMBUS, O.—Each bridge and culvert on the state highway system will be numbered, somewhat similar to the way in which state routes are numbered, before the end of 1931, O. V. Merrill, state highway director, announced.

Each bridge will bear the county's name abbreviated, the number of the route, a dash and distance in miles and tenths from the south and west boundary line of the county.

Motorists desiring to report a bridge or culvert condition can refer to the number and highway officials will know exactly the structure referred to and its location.

A small metal plate not to be confused with a route marker will be put on each bridge, and the numbers probably will be painted on culverts.

Nippert Wet Vote Bill Is Defeated

The bill of Representative Nippert, Cincinnati, calling for a state-wide election on the Eighteenth amendment, was defeated by the Ohio House Tuesday. Representative E. D. Williamson voted against the bill. It is said that other anti-prohibition bills will meet like fate if reported by the committee.

M. S. DAUGHERTY FOUND GUILTY OF BANK FRAUD

Having successfully boomed politics in the Seventh Congressional District, his own county, and a directing force in state politics for twenty-five years, bluffed the United States Senate and escaped contempt proceedings following the oil scandal, M. S. Daugherty, of the State Bank of which was president, has been found guilty of bank fraud.

Having stubbornly fought five indictments in Fayette county court charged with abstracting funds from the Ohio State Bank for the past five weeks, a jury of his own citizens late Wednesday afternoon returned a verdict of guilty on each count. Daugherty now faces a maximum penalty of 10 years in the penitentiary on each charge and a fine of $10,000 on each count.

The jury only deliberated about one hour and returned a unanimous verdict. Knowing Daugherty's political strength in Fayette county reports have been in circulation for some time predicting a hung jury. Daugherty is a brother of Harry Daugherty, former attorney general under the late President Harding, who resigned under President Coolidge while under fire in connection with government oil scandals.

The famous trial that has attracted all Ohio was stopped last week owing to the death of Daugherty's aged mother. It is expected that an appeal will be taken. Other indictments in connection with the bank case are yet to be tried.

Among Daugherty's counsel was Sherman Deaton, Urbana, Seventh District Central Committeeman, a co-worker with Daugherty and Congressman Brand in the political vineyard.

Yellow-Jackets Again Victorious

Wednesday evening the Cedarville College basketball team defeated the Urbana University in a very exciting game. The game was close all the way through. The two teams put up a real scrap. Each had the lead in see-saw fashion. Urbana had a two point lead with 10 seconds to play when Garlough sunk the one basket he had been trying for all evening, tying the score 38-39. In the overtime the Cedarville five scored 6 points to Urbana 1 to finish victorious 44-39. Cedarville College will close the basketball season Friday at Wilberforce, the game starting at 6:00 P. M.

COURT NEWS

JURY DISAGREES
Unable to arrive at a verdict after deliberating for hours, a jury in Common Pleas Court was discharged about 9:30 o'clock Friday night by Judge R. L. Gowdy when it disagreed as to the guilt or innocence of Ralph Gorman, 21, of 152 Center St., who was indicted by the grand jury for receiving stolen property and furnishing liquor to minors. Gorman's trial lasted most of the day Friday. He was indicted as a sequel to a robbery at the Frank Fletcher grocery, 416 W. Second St., last January 2 in which groceries and tobacco were stolen.

DEFENDANT WINNER
Deliberating only forty minutes, a Common Pleas Court jury composed of three women and nine men returned a verdict for the defendant Thursday afternoon at the close of the second trial of the $25,000 breach of promise suit filed by Miss Erna Johnson, 406 Bolander Ave., Dayton, against Howard Faulkner, Caesar Creek Twp. farmer.

At the first trial of the case last July the jury disagreed and counsel for Miss Johnson obtained a new trial. Action of Faulkner in breaking off an engagement of more than a year's standing last March, allegedly without offering any explanation other than that he did not desire to get married, was charged by Miss Johnson, a stenographer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnson.

Faulkner based his defense on the attitude of his former fiancée toward farm life and the duties expected of a farmer's wife, quoting a statement attributed to the plaintiff that she would not be a slave to any man.

FRAGMENTS FROM AN ASTRONOMER'S WORKSHOP

By Dr. Harlan True Stetson, Director of Perkins Observatory, Ohio Wesleyan University, Author of "Man and the Stars."

OTHER WORLDS IN THE MARCH SKIES

ONE of the compensations for cold weather for the enthusiastic stargazer is the gorgeous array of bright stars which accompany the winter season. In addition to the usual group of stars in Orion and the brilliant stars Sirius, Procyon, Capella and Aldebaran, we have with us this month two bright planets which, because of their present nearness to the earth, out-shine all other stars in the sky. These planets are Mars and Jupiter which stand high in the southeast during the early evenings of March.

Jupiter we have with us every year but Mars, a swifter runner of the zodiac, periodically escapes our attention. It is only about every other year that it adorns our evening skies. On the 28th of January, Mars and the sun were on exactly opposite sides of the earth, the planet then rising as the sun was setting. It is at this so-called configuration of opposition that the Martians and the inhabitants of the earth do most of their hobnobbing, if they are to do any at all. Under these circumstances the earth in its orbit about the sun is passing closest to Mars, the distance between the two planets being less than at any other time in their celestial journeys.

However, one cannot expect to learn too much about Martian affairs even under such circumstances, for the closest approach of the two planets when most favorably situated is still about 35 millions of miles. Mars is sometimes called the "mystery planet." Astronomers know just enough about it to make us wonder if there can really be inhabitants there, and yet our meager knowledge of this strange world makes it quite impossible to give a definite answer.

Man has always wondered whether or not there were people on other worlds. The favorite question which the visitor to an observatory

BOARD MEMBERS OPPOSE HIGH TAX APPRAISAL

The annual meeting of the boards of education with the county board was held in the assembly room of the Court House, Tuesday. The meeting was called to consider problems of interest to all the boards in the county, especially the higher valuation of property for taxation.

A resolution was passed strongly opposing an increase in tax valuation under the coming re-appraisal. The meeting was addressed by Fred Stewart of Clark county, president of the Clark County Board of Education, who spoke in behalf of an appeal to the legislature to withhold payments to the state teachers' retirement fund until such time as there was actual need for additional funds to keep the fund solvent.

The group favored an income tax as a means of obtaining additional support for schools. It was also suggested that local schools be given complete authority to fix maximum and minimum number of basketball games to be played during a season. Some few were inclined to favor elimination of athletic events.

Supt. H. C. Aultman explained provisions of Ohio House bill now pending proposing a levy at an average rate of 20 cents per child per day, which amount would reach $18,000 in school districts with an enrollment of 500 children.

J. B. Rife, county board member, spoke to some extent on the coming re-appraisal, favoring a reduction of land values and an equitable property valuation. A suggestion for reduced salaries for teachers was also brought up for consideration but there was some objection. Others who took part in the discussions were A. E. Richards and Supt. Furs, of the local schools, the former being clerk of the board; C. A. Devoe, Bowersville, and A. E. Gower, Bellbrook.

W. B. Bryson, president of the county board, was chairman of the meeting, with Frank Charles, Jefferson Township, secretary. It was decided to make the next annual meeting similar to this meeting but to be an open and fraternal discussion of local school matters.

DISMISS CASE

Suit of G. A. Stewart, as executor, against John W. Henderson and others has been dismissed in Common Pleas Court on application of the plaintiff.

usually asks of an astronomer is "Do you think there is life on any of the other planets?" Before we can make any attempt to answer such a question, due consideration has to be given to the elements necessary for supporting life. The only kind of life about which we know anything is that which exists on the earth. So to talk intelligently about life on other worlds, we have to consider the every day elements that make life on the earth possible. These are, first of all, air, water and a reasonable temperature.

The telescope tells us that Mars has an atmosphere; that it turns on its axis, as does the earth, in a period of very nearly twenty-four hours; that it has seasons similar to our own; spring, summer, autumn and winter. The necessary element of the atmosphere for supporting life is oxygen. Fortunately, by means of the spectroscopic, the scientists have been able to find that oxygen definitely exists in the atmosphere of Mars.

The existence of water on Mars was, for a long time, a debatable question. Persistent observations, however, with the spectroscopic have revealed water vapor in the Martian atmosphere. This tells us that there must be water on the planet, even though for other reasons we know the amount of water must be very small as compared with that on the earth.

Perhaps the most conspicuous object which one sees on Mars with the telescope on a good clear night is the little white polar cap on the top of the planet, resembling very much a patch of snow and ice. As this polar cap on Mars vanishes with the advent of spring and summer, and grows again during the winter season, we have very good reason for believing that conditions in our own arctic are very likely duplicated in the arctic of the planet Mars.

No large bodies of water similar to those of the earth appear to be on the planet. The entire surface of Mars

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1931

SHORT BUT EXCELLENT

We bid goodbye to a February of marvelous delights and welcome a March which we hope will copy behavior from its mild predecessor. It would take a long memory to recall another such second month in this section of the country.

Leaving out of account February's closing day, the month was 138 degrees warmer than normal. Northerners sojourning in the south to escape a rigorous winter have missed week after week of such glorious sunshine and exhilarating days as one like to dream but seldom experiences in these parts.

Ohio should have had more moisture for future crops' sake, but for sheer joy of living no improvement could be suggested. Again excluding yesterday, the month's deficiency in precipitation was 1.15 inches. Last summer's drought seems not to have entirely worn itself out. Country cisterns still have empty capacity. Farm lands are drier than they should be at the end of February.

Farmers in the northern half of the state were plowing two weeks ago, adding their testimony to that of returning birdkind that the spring is near. Everyone hopes the prophecies are correct. Plowmen and feathered migrants have cheered us up. It would be in the nature of cruel, though not unusual, punishment for March now to put on an exhibition of leonine harshness.

Anyway, what one has enjoyed cannot be taken from one. We bid a fond goodbye to a bland and gladsome February. And please, March, be good!

ALL THE KING'S HORSES AND MEN

Just how far Daugherty political strength figured in the State Banking Department can best be judged by the tenor of testimony offered by the banker-politician on the witness stand a few days ago in his trial for alleged violation of banking laws. Daugherty was faced with the statement that certain of his acts were against banking laws but his answer was "there was no penalty for such a violation" and his word superseded law.

Again in his testimony he tells of how the Cooper Administration attempted to raise funds to keep the bank open though he admitted it was insolvent. The ex-Governor and his political associate, Ed. Schorer, a gang politician from Cincinnati, failed to find success among bankers and because $100,000 could not be found poor Mr. Gray, was forced to post a notice that the State Banking Department was in charge. Gray refused to do this against Daugherty's desire for an early closing that depositors that day would have some protection. Throughout the whole trial this one admission from Daugherty probably won him more sympathy than any testimony offered.

That the Daugherty bank was granted rights not accorded other banks was due to his political connection with Cooper, Schorer, Gray, and others. About the only two political associates of Daugherty that did not figure in the testimony were Congressman Charles Brand and D. Pemberton, the latter a former liquor lobbyist. As Andrew Brown, head of the Fresh Air Taxi Cab Company, would say, both were only "fair weather friends".

VETERANS TO GET THEIR LOANS ON BONDS

Now that Congress has made possible the loans for veterans over President Hoover's veto, the rush is on to get papers on file that cash may be secured. That thousands of veterans were in great need of financial aid owing to unemployment there can be no dispute. Those who sacrificed during their service over seas are entitled to consideration even though government financial credits may be strained for a brief time.

President Hoover evidently gave a clear statement as to his position and there is nothing to indicate he had any personal feeling against the veterans. It is his duty to be on guard. His position and action was not dictated by political expediency. Congress only voted for the loan to get votes, many of the party leaders on both sides not coming into the open until it was almost certain the measure was to pass.

We might disagree with the President in not using his veto on the measure providing for more war ships. The nation cannot be convinced we have need of more war craft of that type at this time or the near future than we have now for tallow dips. If the nation has money by the million for war craft it has money to recompense the boys that answered the call in the days we needed war fighting machines.

DISCUSSING TAX PROBLEMS

Every few days we hear of a group gathered in some designated spot to discuss taxation. The subject is not new neither is the weather and of all the discussion we are reminded about the famous story on the weather—"every one talks about it but nobody does anything." Few groups can be found but what have a selfish purpose in tax matters. If it is manufacturers, they are out for themselves. If it is bankers or other financial interests the side of interest to them is looked into. If the farmers have occasion to delve into the situation, it is for their own protection. The poor lonely home owner can talk about it all he pleases but he has no organization to sponsor his ideas or even offer defense. Every class acting purely on a selfish basis means of course that we are getting no place and never will until all interests can have faith and confidence in each other for finding a practical solution, fair to all.

We all seem to want this and want that never stopping to consider who is to pay the bill. In the past so much of our tax money has come from unseen sources the public has not realized that each individual has been paying in some form or another. If we had more direct taxation with the poll tax for non property owners, only such issues would be approved at elections that were actually needed.

The plan of classification for Ohio has not yet been placed before the people, due largely to the fact that most of the leaders favoring it now fear it will not work under conditions in Ohio. Men are scratching their heads day and night trying to think of some new form of taxation or how more tax money can be drawn from corporations, farms and property owners. A special legislative committee is now at work but there are many that have misgivings as to what can be accomplished.

No new plan is going to be adopted to provide governmental revenue without finding a way to tax intangibles. Increase valuations on all property for tax purposes or increase rates. If all of these fail we then have another alternative, one that is not often mentioned, and never debated seriously in any group.

We have reached the stage when we must have some reduction in our public requirements but to get this we must have the sacrifice on the part of all interests. Our schools consume more than fifty per cent of the tax dollar. Will the school interests stand for a reduction? Will the public be satisfied with any other standard for education?

Another class is that interested in agriculture. Will farm leaders stand for reduction in expenditure of public funds? Will farmers continue to demand more production when their markets are now glutted the world over? The federal department spends millions for seeds for congressmen to send out free. Every branch of agriculture from federal, state down to township has for years drawn on tax money. How much of a reduction will the farm interests stand for?

There are other interests that concern the public as much as the two we have named and have had support from tax money but will they stand for a reduction. We have reached the cross roads in public expenditures, yet a program amounting to nearly a quarter billion dollars has been outlined as a necessity in Ohio for welfare housing. In our opinion it is no longer a question of discussion on tax matters by groups but agreeing among group and civic leaders as to each standing a considerable reduction in public appropriations for the things we have all considered necessary in the past.

The Ohio Chamber of Commerce has wisely recommended to Governor White and the legislature that Ohio needs a two year holiday on public building. A reduction on spending for things we can do without a reasonable length of time will do more to settle the tax problem than reductions on real estate values or lower tax rates. Low tax values mean a higher tax rate. Higher tax values mean a continued climb on tax rates and possible chance of increasing tax spending. The valuation and tax rate will always stand in the same relationship. Some group might suggest to the legislature that Ohio have its own standard for schools and eliminate much red tape. The same with other interests living from public revenue. Talk before the legislature or your representative or senator. Talking in groups is but wasting time for few can be convinced as to what is best.

The heads and ears carry the marked Berkshire type while the body is belted along Hampshire lines and about the same style. It is the only herd in this section so far as we know and is about ready for market.

"It's off with the old and on with the new" for Charley Smith, who has stood up so long beside a barber chair, there is some question about the stability of this piece of furniture unless he is near. For thirty-six years Charley has been carrying water for use in his barber shop but on Tuesday he hung up his buckets and is now connected with the municipal water system. Charley has made a careful calculation of the average amount of water he has used each day during the thirty-six years. His estimate is 26,000 gallons. This might be compared with the supply in the storage tank which is 150,000 gallons.

A letter from a friend in Virginia gives us some idea of drought in that section which has continued since last July. Farmers are still hauling water and the sky remains so bright day after day people wonder if there is to be either clouds or rain. Time is nearing for spring crops and the ground has not enough moisture to think about starting. There is still great demand for relief among all laboring classes.

The March Lion made his appearance here Sunday morning with a light snow and light freeze that night. Of course spring cannot be officially welcomed before March 21 and then we will expect the Lamb, equinoxal showers and budding trees. It might be well to recall that it was one year ago this month since this section had anything like a downpour rain that jumped streams out of banks on quick notice. This section must have a heavy spring rainfall to be prepared for summer. As it is the ground is only moist about a foot down.

Times may be hard as the saying goes but if you scan the list of delinquent property back on taxes in the county and make comparison with neighboring counties, old Greene stands well up in front which should make every property owner proud. After praise is passed on the county, Cedarville and Cedarville township must come in for separate praise. About two pieces in town and two in the township represents our delinquent property. We still are of the opinion that no township or town in the county are any better off even in such times as these, than Cedarville township and village, and the tax payments reflects this opinion as usual.

The feasting in the daily press among higher-ups as to the best way to eat corn pone with or without pol-licker, dunked or broken up, brings to mind some one should put out a new set-up for spinach. Spring Greens and bacon have so long held a place on the menu no one dares change it. The injunction "and they shall make these eat grass as oxen" probably included dock, lambs quarter, mustard, pokeweed and dandelions. Spring's best tonic.

About 900 rural women in 80 communities will study the problems of local township government in 1931. They will consider such questions as the cost of township government, how township officers are elected, active or conducted by the township, and the place of township government in present day rural life. Some women will study the legal and political status of women.

Scientists say typhus fever is spread by fleas that bite rats, then humans. Recalling that Rocky Mountain fever, spread by ticks, was conquered by "tick-juice inoculation," the scientists suggest that a similar remedy for typhus may be made of the rat-biting flea. Ground-up fleas as a medicine would not be pleasing. Human beings and their governments should have the energy to eliminate rats. Then fleas could not bite them. Similarly, they should wipe out crocodiles, that supply the death germs of sleeping sickness to the tsetse fly.

Impossible? Suppose each rat contained a gold dollar and each crocodile a $10 bill, how long would they last? Turkey, seeking to uncover the faces and also the legs of her women, starts a competition for "the most beautiful pair of legs in all Turkey."

Increased Yields From Fertilizers

Best Kind of Phosphate Found By Series of Tests

Applications of superphosphate produce greater increases than do applications of rock phosphate, says E. P. Reed, extension specialist in soils at the Ohio State University.

Tests conducted at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station show that an application of 8 tons of stall manure and 320 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate per acre will increase corn yields by about 35 bushels, wheat yields by almost 16 bushels, and clover yields by more than a ton. The entire value of the increase was found to be $97.22. Superphosphate applied at the rate of 320 pounds per acre with manure produced an average return over manure alone of $19.55 with a cash outlay of only $3.55 for the fertilizer.

When 320 pounds of rock phosphate and 8 tons of stall manure were applied per acre, corn yields were increased by 30 bushels, wheat yields were boosted by about 13 bushels, and the clover increase amounted to 1620 pounds. The value of this increase or about $40 less than the increase per rotation was found to be $47.50, obtained with superphosphate.

Eight tons of stall manure per acre applied without fertilizer was responsible for an increase in corn yields of approximately 10 bushels, and a boost of 1926 pounds in clover production. The increases produced by stall manure were valued at $37.72 per rotation, and the increases from the same amount of yard manure were found to be worth $82.31 per rotation.

LETTER TELLS OF
GRAVES IN FRANCE

Mrs. T. M. Hanna, of Ruthville, Iowa, and former librarian of Cedarville, was a gold star mother who went on a pilgrimage to France with 289 other mothers and widows of soldiers who were killed in the World War to visit their graves. Mrs. Hanna writes the following about the Meuse Argonne cemetery at Romagne, France:

"We reached the end of our pilgrimage on Monday, June 2nd and the next morning at 9:30 four buses left for the cemetery at Romagne. We were about two hours making the trip. We passed along through the regions that were right in the midst of the war. One guide told us there was not a foot of land that had not been stirred up by the shell shots for a distance of twenty-five miles or more. We saw where many dugouts had been and row after row of trenches. We saw the ruins of several towns that had been deserted and several others that had been rebuilt since the war. Much of the land had been reclaimed.

"The Meuse Argonne cemetery is a beautiful sight. It is so majestic in its dignity, so beautiful in its coloring, so well designed and beautifully kept, so well chosen as to position reaching from the top of a sloping hillside down across the level stretch and up another slope on the other side. At the top of the hill, there is a building called 'The Memorial'.

"A hostess house had been built for the comfort of the Gold Star Mothers. Here our names were called and each one given a card showing the location of the graves of our sons. The card gave number of grave, block and row, so it was easy to locate the graves. We were conducted in companies to the center aisle below the graves and each given a wreath which was furnished by the government. They have planted a few trees in the cemetery and the bunch of grass and rosebush which I brought with me was still alive and will be planted in a bed in the cemetery. Nothing is planted on the graves, the whole area of crosses is level lawn. It was noticeable by the date on the crosses that many had lost their lives the last four weeks of the war.

We visited the Ossuary of Donau-mont. It is a large building surrounded by a large dome and it has a row of arched chambers along its entire length. In each chamber are four large urns and in these urns are the bones of 30,000 unknown French soldiers. On the side of the hill in front of the Ossuary is a large French cemetery.

"The search for bones and shells is still being made on many of the battle fields. An award is given for every identification tag or shell found. There were two or three large piles of shells stacked up by the roadside and we saw two piles of bones. We passed several German cemeteries and their graves are marked with black crosses. The graves of the Americans are marked with white marble crosses. You find row after row of these marble crosses with now and then a six-pointed star, for a Jewish boy, while the graves are covered with a blanket of green grass.

"Several trips were made to this cemetery, each time going and returning by different route thus enabling us to see more of the battle fields and devastated areas. "On one of these trips Mrs. Hanna found the grave of one of our Cedarville boys. His grave is in Block G and the head stone bears the following inscription: 'Sherman Dudley, Pvt. 1 Cl. 372 Inf. 98 Div. Ohio, October 6, 1918'. The grave is in a fine location near the 'Memorial'.

COLLEGE NEWS

On Tuesday, at the chapel hour, Rev. Oscar Sedam, Associate Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, who is from New York City and on furlough from the Belgian Congo mission field, West Africa, addressed the faculty and students, placing before them the value and need of the Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions.

The Volunteer Movement for Foreign Missions of the Southern Ohio colleges is meeting in Springfield this week end, Friday, Saturday, and Sabbath, in Wittenberg College. The main speakers are Rev. Hadley of New York City and Dr. and Mrs. Gray of the Virgin Islands. Some members of the faculty and several students of the college are expected to attend.

Word received from Mrs. Blanche Dickason, of Wooster, to President McChesney says that Vice-President J. H. Dickason, who was seriously hurt in an automobile accident last fall was brought home from the hospital just ten days ago. He is yet very weak and suffers much. His broken leg is not yet ready for the cast. His thumb on the left hand had to be amputated on the first joint. He is gaining strength slowly. He is deeply interested in Cedarville College and its welfare. Any persons here who would like to write to him, and he would appreciate your letters, may address him: Professor J. H. Dickason, Wooster, Ohio.

Calls for catalogues and bulletins of Cedarville College and interest manifested in student enrollment have never been so great since the founding of the college as they are at the present time. Prospective students from New England to the Pacific are writing in inquiring about the college and its work.

It is also noteworthy that most prospective students are no longer showing an interest so decidedly in normal courses or preparation for teaching. They are rather turning to the liberal arts, scientific, and the courses preparatory for law, medicine, ministry, etc. The young people are beginning to realize that the best way to prepare for life is to lay a good foundation in securing a broad liberal arts course.

The liberal arts course, as offered by the colleges today, practically lays the foundation for any pursuit in life. The teaching profession is over crowded. In Ohio alone there are eight thousand more teachers than there are places for them and a like proportion prevails throughout forty other states of the Union. The state department of education are weeding out poor teachers and inexperienced teachers to a great extent and are placing and recommending teachers who have taken full college courses, obtained a degree, and have some experience of a successful character.

Cedarville College invites the young people of this community to consider these facts. Take no cuts in your preparation for life; lay broad and deep the foundations and fit yourself in such a way that you can be ready for the various emergencies which are to confront you upon your graduation from college.

The new catalogue of Cedarville College goes to press in a very few days and will be ready for distribution early in April. We are glad that several have responded promptly and liberally to the appeal of Cedarville College for cash and checks to the Maintenance and Expansion Fund of $15,000. Nearly six thousand dollars of this fund must be raised by the middle of May. The college is in need of your generous and liberal gifts. Any contribution which you feel able to give, whether it be large or small, to Cedarville College, will be gratefully received and wisely used.

is ruddy except for a few darker patches where it is possible that some form of vegetation exists. Perhaps the surface of Mars in general is very much like that of the deserts of Arizona and southern California. With the coming of the spring season on Mars, and the melting of the polar ice cap, tiny faint lines appear to cross the surface of the planet in the most artificial fashion. These fine lines were first discovered by the Italian astronomer, Schiaparelli, at the nearest approach of Mars in 1877. These lines were named by Schiaparelli "canals". Perhaps we have all too freely translated this into English as "canals".

However, many of these canals have been observed many times in this country, particularly at the Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Arizona. The founder of this well-known Observatory, Dr. Percival Lowell, firmly believed that these canals marked the track of lines of vegetation which followed vast irrigation ditches that he believed had been dug by intelligent beings. If anyone lives on Mars, we can feel fairly certain that every available source of water supply is being tapped for irrigation purposes in order that sufficient vegetation can be maintained for supporting life. The summer melting of the ice cap suggested to Dr. Lowell such a source of supply, and the very artificial appearance of the net-work of canals led him to believe that they had not been formed by natural causes.

Until rather recently, astronomers have been reluctant to think of life on Mars, as the planet was so far from the sun, as compared with the earth, that they felt that it must be a very cold world with a temperature of about forty degrees below zero. However, at the recent approaches of Mars, careful measurements at the Lowell and Mt. Wilson Observatories with very delicate heat measuring apparatus have revealed that Mars is not such a cold world after all. There are places on the planet where during the day-time the temperature rises to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. It is entirely conceivable that life may exist under such circumstances although, to be sure, it would be very different from any with which we are familiar here on the earth.

To say, however, that Mars is inhabited with a race of intelligent beings is very different from saying that the planet is habitable. Astronomers may be able to pass judgment on the habitability of a planet and yet be at a total loss to make any definite statement of the inhabitants thereof. One thing seems rather certain, however, and that is that of all the planets which, like the earth, circulate about the sun, Mars is the one, with the possible exception of Venus, which is most likely to support life.

COMEDY AND PATHOS FEATURING AT SPRINGFIELD THEATRES NEXT WEEK
The Chakertes-Warners' Springfield playhouses will offer a series of stellar attractions the coming week, headed by Nancy Carroll and Phillips Holmes in "Stolen Heaven," which will show for four days at the Regent, starting Saturday, March 7. It is an appealing love drama centered in New York and Florida. "Finn and Hattie," a rollicking comedy seasoned with a touch of pathos, is the offering for the last half of the week.

At the State theatre the popular comedienne Louise Dressler and Polly Moran will appear in "Reducing." It is a great picture that has been playing to big crowds in the larger cities. The last three days of the week "Her Man" will be the feature. It is an exciting talkie set in Havana and starring Helen Twelvetrees.

"The Royal Bed," which shows at the Fairbanks Sunday and Monday, March 8 and 9, has been aptly described as an uproarious farce with a dash of heartache. It is followed by "Mother's Cry," which runs for three days. It is an admirable screen portrayal of Helen Grace Carlisle's novel of the same name. A thrilling western picture, "The Fair Warning," will be the offering for Friday and Saturday. George O'Brien plays Whistlin' Dan, the straight-shooting two-fisted hero.

Mary Rose Stock Company Comes to Opera House, Friday

Friday night the Mary Rose Stock Company will appear at the Cedarville Opera House and the people of Cedarville are thus assured a theatrical treat. This splendid company is considered one of America's leading dramatic stock organizations, and seldom, indeed, does a city the size of Cedarville have the opportunity to witness, in its own theatre, a company of comparative excellence.

The Mary Rose company has broken all records for attendance and lengthy engagements in many of the principal cities of the south and middle west, and on next May 17th will open an all summer's engagement in Dayton, Ohio. During the interval between now and that time, the company will play a circle of the smaller Ohio cities, and will appear in Cedarville each Friday night.

The opening play will be Chas. Harrison's famous Broadway comedy success, City Wives and Country Relations, the funny comedy that New York laughed at, for one solid year, at the Longacre theatre. If you want to laugh as you never laughed before, don't fail to see City Wives and Country Relations. In addition to the regular performance, five acts of high class vaudeville will be introduced between acts of the play, thereby eliminating otherwise tiresome waits, and assuring a continuous performance. The admission price is adults any seat 35 cents, children any seat 10 cents. Doors open at 7:30. Performance starts promptly at 8:15.

SUIT INVOLVES LAND
Suit for $400 has been filed in Common Pleas Court by William E. Rachford and Felicia Rachford against Charles L. Behr and Myrtle E. Behr, the case involving a real estate transaction. T. C. Long is named co-defendant. Miller and Finney are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Although the total corn crop last year was about 30 per cent less than in 1929 and 25 per cent less than the average for the last 5 years, there probably will not be an extreme shortage of corn this spring and summer. Hog prices are now about as low as they have been for these or four years. Per capita consumption of pork and lard in the United States was rather low last year, and during the last three months was extremely low.

Again WE REPEAT COMPARE

Compare the values, prices and service we give you with those of any other tire dealer or distributor of special brands.
The low prices of rubber and cotton give Firestone unusual advantages due to their world-wide facilities in securing these raw materials and their efficient manufacturing. With Firestone's most economical distributing system, with over 600 branches, warehouses and service stores, we can secure a complete line of fresh Firestone tires, tubes, batteries, brake lining, rims and accessories within a few minutes to a few hours' time and give our customers values and service that are not duplicated.

6 PLY TIRE

8 PLY TIRE

Firestone has this year added more rubber to the tread which gives 20% to 25% more safe mileage before the tread wears smooth.
The Firestone Double Cord Breaker gives you SIX and EIGHT ply under the tread—springs road shocks—insures puncture—gives over 50% stronger union between tread and tire body which ensures longer tire life and greater safety.
Live rubber penetrates every cord and coats every fiber by the patented Gum-Dipping process—thus not only every cord, but every fiber within the cords, is insulated, this gives you 20% to 40% added tire life.
